

WOMEN, BUSINESS AND THE LAW

Women, Business and the Law 2023 is the ninth in a series of annual reports measuring the laws and regulations that affect women's economic opportunity in 190 economies. Women, Business and the Law makes the case for reform toward gender equality and highlights the way toward a more equitable and prosperous world. This year, the report includes findings from historical data that highlight opportunities for reform and can inspire efforts to seek equality. Governments, the private sector, and civil society can use this framework to identify and remove barriers to women's economic empowerment and boost labor force participation and entrepreneurship.

This dissemination toolkit offers resources for donors, citizens, policymakers, international and local experts, partners, and civil society organizations seeking to embed Women, Business and the Law findings into their work. Reforms that unleash economic opportunities for women not only empower women but also strengthen communities and economies.
